brings you a

SYMPOSIUM

Community Participation and Adults with Psychiatric Disability

The World Health Organization (WHO) in its International Classification of Health, Function and Disability (ICF) has identified participation in life situations as one of the ultimate outcomes of health and rehabilitation services. For adults with psychiatric disabilities, community participation has been difficult. This group of domestic and international scholars will present on concepts underlying the measurement and facilitation of community participation, as well as the scientific support for community participation as an ultimate goal of psychiatric rehabilitation.

Concepts and Measurement of Community Participation.
